

Robert L. Wagmiller, Jr.
Temple University

Biography Statement

Robert L. Wagmiller, Jr., Associate Professor, Department of Sociology, Temple University. Dr. Wagmiller received the PhD in Sociology from the University of Chicago. Most recently, he served as Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies in the Department of Sociology at the University at Buffalo, SUNY. His research has appeared in the American Sociological Review, Demography, Child Development, Social Problems, and Urban Affairs Review. His research focuses on policy-relevant issues related to social stratification over the life course and among neighborhoods and communities. His current research projects focus on developing a life course approach for understanding neighborhood attainment and on investigating the potential link between family income volatility during childhood and social, emotional, behavioral outcomes later in life.